The Clash of Authority Between the Governor and the Senate

Assuming Most Dangerous Proportions and the Senate Will Probably Take Steps

To Proceed Against The Chief Executive—Partisanship Run Mad.

The disgraceful display of partisanship at Frankfort reached a stage Sunday night that must mark the present session of the Kentucky Legislature as the most shameful one in the entire history, of not only this, but of any other State, not excepting the reconstruction period through which some of Kentucky's Southern sisters passed. At 9:30 o'clock Sunday night Gov. Bradley, acting upon what he calls authority, but which looks most like an opinion, ordered out the State Guards and placed them in charge of the State House. At the hour named the riot bell of the Franklin county Court House was rung and the McCleary Guards of that city quickly assembled and were placed in charge of the State House and grounds. Pickets were placed at the gates and along the fence surrounding the State House grounds and all who attempted to enter were stopped by the soldiery. Senator Bronston among others attempted to enter and was stopped and refused admission.

"By what authority do you stop me?" demanded Mr. Bronston. "I am a State Senator and am entitled to entry."

"I am instructed to let no one in," replied the picket.

"I demand to be admitted," said Mr. Bronston.

The picket called in a loud voice:

"Orderly Sergeant, post No. 2." When this officer had come the picket told him to call the Captain. Mr. Bronston was then conducted to the office of the Governor and a spy interview followed. Adj. Gen. Culler ushered the Senator into the Governor's private office. He was engaged in preparing a statement for the press and was surrounded by Republican leaders.

"Governor," said Mr. Bronston, "I have just been stopped at the State House gate. I desire to know by what authority these soldiers are in the State House?"

"The Governor dropped his pen. 'By mine, sir,' he replied."

Both he and Mr. Bronston showed a very slight degree of nervousness.

Continuing the Governor said: "In formation has reached me that a mob composed of those men who have been intimidating and menacing members of the Legislature for the past few days would attempt to take charge of the House of Representatives to-night in order to create a disturbance to-morrow, and the further information has reached me that it has been agreed upon that I should be arrested for threatening to call out the militia, and for issuing the order to the sheriff; also that you sir, had said that ought to be arrested. This information was conveyed to me by a newspaper correspondent, who is now present, and I have therefore called out the militia, not through any political motive, but to preserve the peace and dignity of this Commonwealth."

"Who is the newspaper man?"

To this the Governor replied: "Mr. D. Elliott Kelly of the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette, so informed me."

Kelley was present. He stepped up and said that he had heard the rumor. He had not heard Mr. Bronston make such a statement.

The information given to the Governor by Kelly was included in a note, which was as follows:

Dear Colonel: Bronston got in from Lexington to-night, and a scheme is on foot to arrest you for usurpation of office. I thought you should know this. Blair, Assistant Sergeant-at-army had been intimidated, assaulted and overawed by people not entitled to the privileges of the two houses."

Mr. Bronston, before leaving, repeated the question:

"And you think, Governor, that you have the right to call out the State Guard without the request of the local civil authorities, and to take charge of them yourself?"

"I do, sir," was the Governor's reply.

"Good evening," said Bronston. The Governor directed the Adjutant General and a corporal to escort Mr. Bronston to the gate and see that he was not interrupted.

The whole disgraceful entanglement is but the legitimate outgrowth of partisanship run riot. Naturally the Democratic members of both Houses are boiling over with indignation at the action of the Governor. An attempt to impeach him would be but a natural sequence to his unwarranted attempt to interfere with the free session of the Senate. Let the outcome be what it may, Bradley's action lets the last bit of wind out of his little Presidential boom.

They Indignate.

The citizens of Frankfort held an indignation meeting yesterday after-

A Tobacconist of High Repute.

There is no one in the tobacco trade of Virginia, in any market, who takes more pride and interest in the tobacco business than Mr. S. P. Carr, of our city. Tobacco dealing is his living and delight. He is a scholar always finding something more to be learned. Communicative himself, he begets and teaches knowledge of the weed. It is no wonder that he is the important link that binds the dealer and planter of the Western Burley with the Virginia manufacturer. Making these products his specialty, he concentrates his mind on their every status and movement and draws conclusions well worthy of more than a patient hearing. Some people by force of circumstances are tobacconists, others by nature, preference and disinterestedness—of the latter class is Mr. Carr—a conscientious commission merchant. Into his hands could consignments better fall, and whose advice and correspondence is commensurately sought after, meeting every expectation of old and new friends in his duty as agent.—Southern Tobacconist.

This is a merited compliment by a home authority to a thoroughly reliable man. We have more than once urged our friends here, who have been feeling so blue over the low prices of tobacco, to try the Richmond, Va., market. Those of our people who have shipped to S. P. Carr & Co. have been making money by so doing. Let others try this house and they will also make money by it.

LOCATED

BY THE CATHODE RAYS.

A Scissors Blade Removed From a Woman's Hand.

Where it Had Been For Twelve Years.

Baltimore, March 12.—The first surgical operation using the X-rays of the Johns Hopkins Hospital was performed by Dr. Finney this morning. It was the extraction of a scissors-blade from a woman's hand, where it had been imbedded for 12 years. The location and position of the substance were revealed by a photograph taken with the X-rays.

Mrs. Williams, the patient, did not know what it was that caused her the intense pain in her hand until the surgeon had produced what the X-rays had revealed. Then she recalled that she had been attacked by another woman about 12 years ago. Her assailant rushed at her with a pair of scissors, and she threw up her hand for defense. The scissors pierced her left hand. After a short time it healed apparently, but continued to give pain when compressed. Prof. Howland gave directions to have the hand photographed with the X-rays.

The woman sat down at the table and stretched her left hand out flat, with the palm down, on the ordinary photographic plate. Above it a short distance was the Crookes tube, through which the electric current was passing. She was kept sitting there twenty-five minutes.

When the plate was developed a clear outline was obtained of the bones of the hand, and the broken point of a scissors blade was also distinctly shown. It was apparently sticking in the bone, and was over a half an inch in length.

Mrs. Williams stood the experiment pretty well, but was evidently scared by the apparatus and the snapping of the electric current. When the electricity began to decompose the air and manufacture ozone she snuffed it and said: "Umph! It smells like gasoline, doesn't it?"

Arms of the Senate, brought word from Lexington to-night that the militia had been called out. What is there in it? Your friend,

D. ELLIOTT KELLY.

The Governor later directed Kelly to arm himself with a pistol, saying that he might be attacked. Kelly did so.

Mr. Bronston replied: "I denounce the statement that I made the remark attributed to me about your being arrested, or that any agreement had been made to that end as false and untrue."

"I will say, though, that a gentleman did say to me to-night that he had examined the statutes on the subject, and that in his opinion you could be tried for menace to the Senate. Now, Governor, I understand you claim the right to order out these troops without any request from the civil authorities."

The Governor replied: "I do. I am the highest civil officer in the State and I think it my duty to preserve the peace and dignity of the State at all hazards. I have affidavits from the presiding officers of the two houses of the General Assembly saying that the local civil authorities had not preserved order, and that legislators noon and denounced the action of Governor Bradley in calling out troops to take possession of the State Capitol. At the joint session only one vote was cast—that of Speed for Boyle, Democrats and Republicans, except in the case of Speed, refusing to answer to their names. Bitter denunciatory resolutions were introduced in the Senate, and before Mr. Billy O'Bradley, who is my accident Governor of Kentucky, is done with it he will find he has seized the very hot end of a very hot poker. The constitutional limit of the session ends today."

Sutro and Huntington.

The stopping of the letters of Hon. S. Sutro, Mayor of San Francisco, the Post-office Department, because of the printed declaration on the envelope that "C. P. Huntington would steal a red-hot stove," has certainly shocked Mr. Sutro in his wild and illogical career. But it is reasonable to suppose that he looks upon the declaration as the work of a madman, and in spreading his views of Mr. Huntington, driven since that was confined to the eyes, he has now, through the press, a full and complete vindication of the action of the authorities, being called to the notice of the entire reading public.

This talk upon the subject of a red-hot stove proceeds upon the generally accepted theory that such an article is not to be stolen, but the following "evidence" for the truth of which this offer vouches, is fatal to the common opinion.

When Gen. Schofield's army was passing eastward from Tennessee, via Baltimore and Ohio road, all trains were stopped at Gratton for coffee. The troops were, for the most part, traveling in box cars—the military sleepers and dining cars of those days. On a saloon near the track was a large, old-fashioned cannon stove, red hot from a roaring fire. Just before one of the trains was to start, a number of soldiers entered under two planks. These they ran under the stove and proceeded to transfer it to their sleeper. A squad followed, some carrying a few joints of pipe, with an elbow, there still the shovel, poker and a liberal supply of coal. The stove was set up, the pipe run out a few inches through a small side window, and as the saloon-keeper could not well leave his bar, lest that should follow the stove, the train left before he was able to call attention to this actual case of stealing a red-hot stove.—Gen. Boynton in Commercial-Gazette.

The Cuban Army.

Col. Frederico O. Perez, Chief of Staff to the Cuban General, Macao, is in New York on a secret mission. In speaking of the Cuban prospects he says:

"When I left Cuba, Gen. Gomez and Macao were very well satisfied with the conditions existing, and hoped to be able to do something more decisive in the near future. The raid through the central provinces has brought good results. The Cubans have gained arms, ammunition and men. Many Spanish reinforcements have been sent to the island over 1,000 Spanish regulars have deserted to the Cubans.

"Since I left the army there has been a reorganization and some changes. Macao and Gomez were about to unite their forces again to make a new movement. They now have an army of about 25,000 men in the central provinces. The Cubans have throughout the island about 60,000 armed men, and about 40,000 partially armed.

"About one-third are cavalrymen, who have plenty of good horses. The Spanish mounted infantrymen are no match for them. Many of the Spaniards are not able to ride, and when they charge they cling with both hands to the pomels of their saddles and do not control their horses."

When Eggs Are Cheap

And abundant, wash the shells before breaking them. When you have a quantity, dry them, crush them fine, beat half a dozen eggs and stir them into a thin cloth, and hang in a very dry place (on a hook near the kitchen stove). When eggs are scarce and high, use a tablespoonful of this to settle coffee. Pour over it a little cold water and let stand over night, or half an hour before wanted.

Commence in good season to save eggshells as nearly whole as possible, to be used in making Easter gifts. Set in a box of sand and fill with good soil, eggshells are nice receptacles in which to start plants in the spring.

An egg in a bottle is a great curiosity to the uninitiated. Soak an egg in strong cider vinegar till the shell softens, and it will bear sufficient pressure to be gently forced lengthwise into a wide-mouthed bottle. Pour cold water over the egg repeatedly and it will resume its natural shape and color.—Sarah E. Wilcox in American Agriculturist.

Rev. E. E. Bomar Preaches an Able Sermon on the Subject.

Sunday night at the Baptist Church Rev. E. E. Bomar preached a sermon on lynching of which we give below an abstract. The fine audience present listened with close attention to the words of the preacher. His text was from Exodus—one of the Ten Commandments, "Thou shalt do no murder." The preacher said:

"Some think that this is not a proper theme for a preacher in his pulpit. Such would divide all the world into men, women and preachers. But a preacher is not a man apart from all the world; a hermit is, a priest is or may be, but a preacher, never. He must be one of the people, and while he is of the world, not worldly minded, he must yet be in the world.

"If it is objected that the theme is sensational, the reply is, so is crime. That sentiment is faulty which makes pets of preachers and insists that they should always dress in the latest style and preach only tender, hortatory sermons. Sin is a dirty thing and he who really deals with it, meets it and fights it, must throw away his gloves and his dress suit and meet it as it is.

"We have precedent for denunciatory sermons. Before Jesus, was John the Baptist; before the gospel Sinai and the law. The Apostle Paul in his letter to Titus says: 'Put them in mind to be subject to rulers, and again in writing to the Romans 'Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God.' And yet again, 'These things speak and exhort and rebuke with all authority.'"

"Therefore I think it my duty to preach on this theme and I advance as the distinct topic of the discourse this proposition: Lynching is never justifiable, not even in the most aggravated cases. I know what it is to feel the indignation which animates a mob against a man guilty of a terrible crime. For I have witnessed, (both times by chance) two lynchings; I know that this may be brought home even to me at some time, but for all that I say that lynching is never justifiable in a well governed State like South Carolina. There are plausible excuses given, but none that justifies. Some say there's no use in talking about it, but I say there is use, and I will talk. There is a need of enlightened public sentiment and it is for that I plead, for the sentiment which stands on principle and refuses to justify lynching no matter how aggravated the crime. I know that lynching is a sort of wild tribute to justice. If men did not care for purity and sobriety, they would never lynch men for rape and murder. I know also that the state of our society is different from that of most of our sister States. I am not here to slander my own State, but to uncover her shame. I love her too well for that. But certainly she is guilty. Her own people have trampled on her laws and in the name of justice have overturned the throne of justice. The simple truth is that in the name of righteousness; in the name of sobriety they have been guilty of lawlessness; in the name of safety, murder.

"The preacher then went on to show why lynching is wrong. He gave five reasons, some low and some as high as heaven, which all can remember and think on.

"Lynching is wrong because it is a costly thing, a dangerous thing, a foolish thing; it set at defiance the laws of the country; it insults sobriety and, in the eyes of God, is nothing more or less than murder.

1. "This lynching is apt to prove costly. A part of Sec. 6, Art. 6, of the Constitution reads as follows:

"In all cases of lynching when death ensues, the county in which the lynching takes place shall, without regard to the conduct of the officers be liable in exemplary damages of not less than two thousand dollars to the legal representative of the person lynched." This is a very practical and sound consideration, but necessary in view of the assertion sometimes made that lynching is the easiest and cheapest way to get rid of notorious criminals.

2. "It is a dangerous thing. It is not always true that mobs get the right man. Frequently it becomes known in after years that they got the wrong man. How can a frenzied mob do justice? The state of mind which renders lynching possible makes true judgment impossible where there is any doubt. An angry mob is like a pack of blood hounds let loose. If they do not get the right man, they will seldom rest content 'till they get somebody.

3. "It is foolish; it is folly; it is useless. For the sense of justice which makes possible lynching and really justifies it will also procure conviction in a legal trial. It is a favorite argument of those who justify lawlessness that our Courts are corrupt and that convictions cannot be obtained. I grant all the annoyance of the law delay, all the influence of the astute lawyers, all the ponderosity of legal proceedings, all the one-sidedness of some maxims and principles, and even all the stupidity of jurors and witnesses, and still I refuse to believe that the average jury in South Carolina would fail to convict a man so clearly guilty of crime that men threaten to arise and sometimes do arise to execute summary judgment on him. What then is use in taking the law into our own hands? Do we not by that act slander that sense of justice which abides in the breast of almost every common farmer in the State? For one I refuse to believe it, that our Courts are so corrupt that a man clearly guilty can get off by the quibble of the law. But we are not left to conjecture; we have a case in point. Some years ago in Spartanburg County a man killed his brother-in-law, in which the public thought was cold blooded murder, brought on the murderer's own crime. Immediately the slayer was arrested and placed in jail. Bail was refused him though he was a man of large means. The indignant public in the neighborhood where the crime was committed, could not wait for him to be tried. They attempted to take him from the jail to lynch him, but they were not the officers, the militia and law-abiding citizens resisted and kept back the mob. Was justice defeated? No. The criminal was in due time tried and in spite of all that money and the best legal talent in the State could do, he suffered the extreme penalty of the law. This case, well known and of but recent occurrence, shows that our Courts are not so corrupt as these examples of the law would have us believe.

4. Again, lynching sets at defiance law and sobriety. It is a great misfortune, I had almost said the greatest, when a generation arises without respect for law and no reverence for justice and its officers. Lynching defies law; it spits in her face, takes from her her crown and tramples her arguments under foot. Disregard for law when it becomes an established sentiment tends to make people lawless and lawless. If our Courts are nothing and our laws to be set aside by the unrestrained sentiments of every mob, the hand of every man must be against his fellows. Lynching for rape makes possible lynching for murder, and lynching for murder makes possible lynching for minor offenses, and lynching for such things as stealing a Bible from a church, makes possible the taking of individual, private revenge in the name of law and order. If we tolerate lynching for the worst offense we may be sure that the mob will tolerate it for smaller offenses. If we invoke the aid or submit

Nervous Prostration Cured by Dr. Miles' Nerve.

Prolonged derangement of the nervous system not only affects the brain and mental powers, but develops disease in some of the vital organs. The most dangerous of these indirect results is when the heart is affected. This was the case of the Rev. N. F. Surface, Fawn River, Mich., who writes under date of Feb. 14, 1895:

"Fourteen years ago I had a slight stroke of paralysis. Overwork brought on nervous prostration. I was exceedingly nervous and the exertion of public speaking caused heart palpitation that threatened my life. I used two bottles of Dr. Miles' Nerve Cure for my heart trouble, and two of Dr. Miles' Nervine for my nervousness, and feel better than I ever expected to feel again. I can speak for hours without tiring or having my heart flutter as it formerly did, and I have you to thank that I am an alive today.

to the patronage of lawlessness we must take consequence and not complain when lawless fellows of the baser sort really rule the land. Lynching is hypocrisy; it is the Devil pretending to look after the public good.

5. "Lastly, lynching is murder. That is all of it and the end of it. If one man takes the law into his hands, or two, and kills another, no one raises a question of guilt in that case. It makes no difference because a mob does the work of one man. Individually and responsibility are not lost in a crowd. All lynchings are murders, guilty in the eyes of God and by the laws of their country. They are cowardly murderers, assassins, striking in the dark, working in the dark, working often behind masked faces, no one daring to assert his individuality. They are weak murderers; no one of them will do what they all do. They lean upon one another in their weakness. They pay no attention to the cries of the guilty. They even add torture and while they sometimes make a mock of God by giving their victims a chance to pray, they more often add torture of some kind. Yes, lynching is murder; unabashed murder, cowardly murder, pitiless murder. God the avenger heard the cries of that man who was taken from the train at Windsor a few nights ago. God saw the end of the victims of Roxton Bridge and God will avenge.

"What concerns us is that His vengeance will fall on all also if we at all justify these acts and do not do all in our power to bring the guilty ones to justice. Therefore I plead for correct views and a healthy sentiment on this subject; that we shall stand on principles when temptation comes; that we shall always support the law, and especially do I ask that God fearing people will never countenance lawlessness in silence, look, or word, but remember the law, 'Thou shalt not kill.'—Aiken, S. THE ADVOCATE.

An Opportunity Missed.

The Republicans of Ohio missed yesterday an opportunity, and improved all the rest.

The ticket that was nominated was exactly that which was printed yesterday in the Commercial Gazette—we might truthfully say, exclusively printed in the Commercial Gazette—and all through the day it was the subject of hearty commendation. It is a good one from top to bottom. We need not stop to particularize, except, perhaps, in the instance of the Food Commissioner, where a word may be said. The Commercial Gazette feels that its course has been indorsed with respect to this office, and that Ohioans may have pure food without oppression.

The platform is a very impassioned declaration of Republican principles. It sounds like a nomination speech. It is full of fervor and fervid phrases. It goes for the Administration as Sheridan charged at Winchester, with the fury of a whirlwind. It is quite a departure, in its fiery spirit, from conventional declarations. It is inspiring and soul-stirring. We wonder who wrote it.

The currency plank is not clear and decided, as it should have been. For all that we can see, free silver Republicanism can stand on it just as well as anybody else. That is what Carter, Du Bois, Mantle and the rest of the silver Senators had reference to the National Republican platform—and then they got into the Senate blocked legislation because other Republicans would not allow a free coinage interpretation to be given to the words.

Oh, yes, we can use every word of the plank, accept them heartily, and adopt them as a declaration for sound money. The trouble is that men who enter into exactly the opposite views from those we have can, or will do the same thing.

And then after Major McKinley is elected President, free silver men will pass a tariff bill, with a free silver rider, and demand that he approve it because it is a sound Republican doctrine.

What's the use? The free silver men have forced the silver issue; and the Republicans of Ohio ought to have met it squarely—as squarely as Abraham Lincoln met the issue of slavery. And they didn't do it. They adopted words which are confessedly ambiguous; adopted them because they were ambiguous. We hope the National Convention will do better.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Moisture is Necessary

For a good hatch. Often when chickens are hatching, the inner membrane of the egg adheres to the down of the chicken, which prevents liberation from the shell. This is usually caused by the nest being kept too dry. A great deal of trouble and loss in this way might be prevented by proper management. A shovel of moist earth should always be placed in the bottom of the nest box. The heat of the hen's body draws up a gradual supply of moisture from the soil. If the weather or location is very damp, this is not essential, but moisture must be supplied from some source or the evaporation from the eggs will be so great that the vitality will be gone and the chick will be dead. A few days before the eggs are due to hatch, dip them in warm water just before the hen returns to her nest, or else pour a pint of warm water around the nest. If the eggs are dipped the work must be carefully and quickly done. This moisture will be converted into steam by the heat of the hen's body, and this softens the inner membrane of the egg.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any ailment, but perhaps more generally needed in the spring, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of tonic and alternative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. Only fifty cents per bottle at W. S. Lloyd's drugstore.

Pills do not Cure.

Pills only aggravate. Karl's Clover Root Tea gives perfect regularity of the bowels. For sale by Thomas Kennedy.

INTERESTING EXPERIMENTS.

Some New Theories as to the Nature of the X-Rays.

New York, March 10.—The Electrical Review will publish to-morrow a communication from Nikola Tesla describing for the first time his very interesting experiments in radiography. The scientific world has been awaiting an expression of opinion from Mr. Tesla, who is known to have begun his experiments within an hour after the news of Prof. Roentgen's discovery was called to this country. In connection with Mr. Tesla's communication, the Electrical Review prints two remarkable radiographs. One of these shows the right shoulder of a man taken through his clothing, a plate of glass three-sixteenths of an inch thick, and two inches of wood. This radiograph, which was made at a distance of four feet from the source of the X-rays, shows the ribs, shoulder bones and bones of the upper arm. The other radiograph shows a copper wire bent to form the word "Roentgen," and was made at a distance of eleven feet from the wooden slab covering the sensitized plate. Mr. Tesla also states that the rarefaction of Crookes tubes used in these experiments may be increased by electrical means to any degree desirable, far beyond that obtainable by mechanical appliances. This method he describes.

In regard to the nature of X-rays he says: "I am getting more and more convinced that we have to deal with a stream of material particles, which strike the sensitive plate with great velocities. Taking as a basis the estimate of Lord Kelvin on the speed of projected particles in a Crookes bulb, we arrive easily by the employment of very high potentials to speeds of as much as 100 kilometers a second. Now, again, the old question arises: Are the particles from the electrode or from the charged surface, generally including the case of an external electrode, projected through the glass or aluminum walls, or do they merely hit the inner surface and cause particles from the outside of the wall to fly off, acting in a purely mechanical way, as when a row of ivory balls is struck? So far, most of the phenomena indicate that they are projected through the wall of the bulb of whatever material it may be, and I am seeking for still more conclusive evidence in this direction.

"It now demonstrated beyond any doubt that small metallic objects or chalky deposits can be infallibly detected in any part of the body."

Tesla has also secured radiographs showing the bony structure of birds and rabbits even to the hollow bones. He has secured a radiograph of a rabbit after an hour's exposure, in which not only every detail of the skeleton is visible, but also a clear outline of the abdominal cavity, location of the lungs and the liver are shown. Radiographs of large birds show the feathers distinctly. In another instance an exposure of forty minutes gave a radiograph of the human skull, showing clearly not only the outline, but the cavity of the eye, chin, cheek, nasal bones, the lower jaw and connections to the upper one, vertebral column and connections to the skull, the flesh and even the hair.

Mr. Tesla concludes his communication in the following interesting words: "By exposing the head to a powerful radiation strong effects have been noted. For instance, I find there is a tendency to sleep, and the time seems to pass away quickly. There is a general soothing effect, and I have felt a sensation of warmth in the upper part of the head. An assistant independently confirmed the tendency to sleep and a quick lapse of time. Should these remarkable effects be verified by men with keener sense of observation, I shall still more firmly believe in the existence of material streams penetrating the skull. Thus it may be possible by these strange appliances to project a suitable chemical into any part of the body.—Courier-Journal.

The Delineator For April,

Which is called the Spring Number, contains a splendid assortment of Styles and Fabrics that will be fashionable during the season. In the Literary department a theme of particular interest to most women is instructively treated in Margaret Nourse's article on The Art of Preserving Youth. The second paper by Mary Cadwalader Jones (Mrs. Frederick Rhineland Jones) maintains the interest created by her March contribution on the Evolution of Dress.

Mrs. Theodore Suro discusses Law as a profession for her sex; J. Bell Landis describes a practical "Dental Drill" for Children, and the general interest in Bicycling is shown in an account of the latest attire therefor. The third and last of the Dental articles is devoted to Artificial Teeth. Sara Miller Kirby's admirable Kindergarten Papers are also brought to a conclusion in this number. There is a delightful sketch of Easter in a Southern Town, and timely directions for the making of Easter Egg Novelties, as well as for the "Easter Proverbs" now so popular. There is also another of Mrs. Haywood's papers on Ecclesiastical Embroidery. H. C. Wood tells about an original Leap Year Party. In addition to the regular article on Seasonable Cookery, there is a practical paper on The Chemistry of Foods, by A. B. Longstreet. Household Sanitation from a popular standpoint, Mrs. Witherspoon's Tea-Table Chat, a Review of New Books, and novel contributions in Fancy Work, Knitting, Crocheting, Lace-Making, etc., are among other features. Price of Delineator is $1 per year, or 15c per copy. Address The Butterick Publishing Co. (limited) 7 to 17 West Thirtieth street.

Smuggling of Chinese.

New York, March 12.—After considerable work in and around Newark by Government officers the first public move to what will tend to break up an alleged scheme to smuggle Chinese into this country was made when Thos. Burns was arrested and locked up in the Essex county jail on a charge of perjury. He is accused of swearing falsely to a passport which enabled a Chinaman, whose name is for the present withheld by the authorities, to cross the Canadian border into Vermont on the alleged grounds that the Chinaman was engaged in business in Newark.

Bradley's Order.

Gov. Bradley Saturday issued to the Sheriff of Franklin county an order directing him to swear in deputies sufficient to preserve order in the General Assembly of Kentucky.

The order is as follows: "Commonwealth of Kentucky Executive Department, Frankfort, Ky., March 14, 1896.—The Commonwealth of Kentucky, to the Sheriff of Franklin County: Whereas, it has been known to me by the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, that armed men congregated in the rotunda of the Capitol building and in the cloak room of the Senate chamber during the session of the joint assembly, and said persons are engaged in making threats to precipitate a difficulty, and that unless prompt action is taken to prevent it serious trouble will result, you are now, therefore, instructed to summon such number of good and reliable, honest and sober citizens as you think necessary to preserve the public peace. You will keep the rotunda clear, so that the members of the Senate will not be obstructed in passing to the chamber of the House; while the joint assembly is in session you will keep all persons out of the rotunda, Senate chamber and cloakroom, of either house, whom you may believe are there for the purpose of breaking the peace (except members of General Assembly, United States Senator Blackburn, and the constitutional officers thereof provided in section 249 of the State Constitution). In the event that the Speaker of the House should call upon you to assist in clearing the galleries or lobbies of the House of Representatives, you will aid him.

"You will not allow any one to enter the chamber of the House of Representatives except the members of the Senate and House, and such other persons as the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House may indicate as being entitled under the rules to be allowed on the floor.

"In the event the President of the Senate asks you for aid to preserve the peace, you will give it, otherwise you will not enter the chamber except in case of actual outbreak and riot, when it shall be your duty to enter and do all in your power to quell it. The seal of the Commonwealth is hereto attached. WILLIAM O. BRADLEY, Governor of Kentucky."

That it should become necessary for the Governor to issue such an order is cause for shame to all sons of this old Commonwealth. If the Governor has not the very best of grounds for issuing such an order he is doing that which not only brings shame on his State, but which may be the cause of the very trouble he pretends to try to avoid.

Fortunately, for all concerned, the Legislature adjourns today.

Indignation Meeting.

The citizens of Frankfort are greatly and justly incensed at the appearance of soldiers in their city by order of a Republican Governor. We were informed yesterday by a gentleman of that city that an indignation meeting would be held under the high state of excitement it was feared that trouble would be almost unavoidable. Franklin County said, thinks that the officials are able to preserve the peace and dignity of her county, and this action on the part of Bully Bill Bradley—a mighty small thing in a high official—was unequalled. Had the authorities needed any help from him they would have asked for it. They think Bully Bill has all he can attend to it will mind his own business.

It may not have been a very creditable act in the Democratic Senate to follow the example of the Republican House and issue a complaint against the members, but the Senate was within the pale of the law. Governor Bradley will have not a little difficulty in establishing that he is not a revolutionist of the rank of a scoundrel. He has degraded himself and the high office he holds by the high handed outrage he has attempted on the Senate.

The action of Governor Bradley in calling out the State troops was but the attempt of a bitter partisan—who does not possess the sense of dignity belonging to his high position—to override the act of the Senate in unseating Walton and James.

A Disgraceful Exhibition.

On Tuesday, Mr. Dunlap, who was contesting Mr. Kaufman's seat in the Kentucky House of Representatives, wrote a letter to the House declining to longer continue the contest. When the contents of this letter became public the Republican majority in the House at once came to the conclusion they must act at once or all chance of their electing a United States Senator would be over. So on Wednesday the report of the committee was called up and Kaufman was summarily dismissed. For weeks the majority had been afraid to proceed to extremes, fearing the Democrats of the Senate would retaliate, as they had threatened to do. No sooner was the action of the Republicans in the House reported to the Senate, than the Democrats of that body proceeded to give the Republicans proof that they dared and had the power to give them a Roland for an Oliver by summarily ejecting Dr. Walton and James from the Upper House.

In a few minutes after the Senate had acted the time for the joint session arrived. James had already succeeded in getting into the Hall of Representatives, where the two Houses met, but Walton was not so fortunate. The Republicans wanted to take the two elected Senators into the joint session, and have them vote, and the Democrats said no. For a time pandemonium reigned and scenes were enacted in and around the Hall such as never before disgraced a session of the Kentucky Legislature. Things assumed so threatening an aspect that bloodshed was looked for each moment. Pistols and knives were nervously grasped and loud and angry rose the roar of the voices of the members and attaches almost frenzied with rage. A number of men who had been appointed as assistants to the Sergeant-at-Arms were on hand and made themselves prominently conspicuous by their loud clamor and threatening attitudes. The Republicans finding they were not going to be allowed to steal the Senatorship without precipitating most direful trouble, quieted down and refused to vote. It was a scene creditable to all concerned, and one that it is to be most sincerely desired may never happen again. The only excuse that can be offered for our Democratic friends is that they were "fighting the Devil with fire."

After the lecture by Mrs. Beauchamp last Monday night the ladies of the town organized a local branch of the W. C. T. U. The enrollment of members was quite large. The first meeting of the society will be held at the Christian Church on Thursday morning. The officers elected are: Mrs. Thomas Rogers, President; Mrs. Lucile Wilson, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. Fannie Hunt Priest, Recording Secretary; Miss Mamie Miller, Treasurer.

The poolrooms of this city suffered Saturday afternoon from what now appears to be a general raid on a daring band of wire-tappers. In the last race at New Orleans the wire-tappers sent in a bogus winner, collected their bets, and made their escape before the poolroom men found out that they had been robbed. The poolroom in this city lost about $6,000.—Courier-Journal.

Mr. John Botts, a well known citizen of the town, on his way home on Wednesday evening, fell on the pavement on Main street in front of Mrs. Debar's residence and broke his arm.

BABES

AND HELPLESS WOMEN

Used as Shields By the Spanish

Troops.

Against the Bullets of an Insurgent Column.

Key West, Fla., March 12.—Of all the devilish deeds charged to the Spaniards since the beginning of the present war in Cuba the most devilish is that committed at the town of Sella del Agua, Province of Havana. According to advices received here an insurgent column appeared before the place Tuesday. As soon as the commander of the Spanish garrison saw the insurgents in the distance he ordered his soldiers to seize every Cuban in town. The order was obeyed, then the Cubans—men, women and children—were forced at the POINT OF THE MORTAR TO stand in line in front of the Spanish troops. There were women in the line who were nursing babies, and little children were clinging to the skirts of mothers. The Cubans were in danger as the insurgents advanced to attack. The insurgents seeing the unarmed men, women and children standing in front of the Spanish troops, withheld their fire, and finally withdrew without attacking the town. After the insurgents withdrew the inhabitants fled to Havana, where they told the story, and sent a committee to Gen. Weyler to complain of the conduct of the Spanish troops.

The protest against the action of Congress, circulated in Havana for signatures, has nearly caused a riot. Many persons who refused to sign have been threatened, and others signed under duress. Members of the Union Club threatened to depose the President for signing the Club's name. The editor of La Discusion declined to sign the paper's name, because the owner was absent in Madrid. He was told to sign or quit publishing the paper, and he signed. Feeling is very bitter over the matter, and an outbreak is threatened. We hear of a proclamation providing for the confiscation of property of those who fail to present themselves in 15 days is bitterly denounced. Thousands have fled from homes to cities, and hundreds have left Cuba. These will lose all. It is claimed the order was issued to furnish Spanish officers a basis for extensive black-mail operations and to wreak vengeance on Cubans generally.

Max O'Rell, March 30th.

The women of the Lecture Association, feel a pardonable pride in their four years experience in lecture work. When it was first begun we were discouraged by almost every one. "People will not attend lectures here—we have tried it and lost money," these were some of the many discouraging things we had to encounter. It made us feel that the word lecture was about as effectual in keeping a crowd away as a yellow flag. But we have proven that not only Dr. Mt. Sterling people go to lectures, but the largest and most cultured audiences ever in the Opera House, are there when we present one of our entertainments.

With Max O'Rell we end the course for this season and this will be our greatest triumph. He has only thirty-six nights in United States and we get one. He lectures in only two places in this state outside of Louisville and Lexington. Of his four lectures—"Her Royal Highness Woman" is the one most complimented by the press. The contrasts of maid, wife, and mother of France, England and America, make up a most delightful character study and is the most charming way possible. We beg for him the audience he merits.

Louisville Tobacco Market.

Sales on our market for the week just closed amount to 4119 hhds, with receipts for the same period 1930 hhds. Sales on our market since January 1 amount to 14,929 hhds. Sales of the crop of 1895 on our market to this date amount to 44,301 hhds.

Receipts on our market this week have been very much curtailed by reason of lack of good tobacco handling seasons, but the sales have remained large as a result of the accumulation of unsold stock within the past few weeks. The general character of the market for the week has been its irregularity. Many sales have been made at prices fully as high as have been obtainable at any time during the year, but many hogheads were neglected and the result has been large rejections and the general tone of the market may be described as unsatisfactory except for the fine grades of leaf and the medium grades of the full bodied red type.

The following quotations fairly represent our market for burley tobacco 1895 crop.

Trash. (Dark or damaged tobacco) $0.75 to $1.50.
Common colony trash, $2.00 to $4.00.
Medium to good colony trash, $4.00 to $6.00.
Common lugs, not color, $2.00 to $4.00.
Common colony lugs, $4.50 to $7.00.
Medium to good colony lugs, $7.00 to $9.00.
Common to medium leaf $5.00 to $8.00.
Medium to good leaf, $8.00 to $15.
Good to fine leaf, $15 to $18.
Select wrapper leaf, $18 to $22.00.
The above quotations are not applicable to green and forced crops.

GLOVER & DORRITT.

A mirror could not lie if it wanted to. The glass has nothing to gain by flattery. If the roses of health and plumpness of beauty are leaving your face, your mirror will tell you so. Health is the greatest beautifier in the world. When a woman sees the indications of ill-health in the face, she may with almost absolute certainty look for the cause in one or both of two conditions—constipation and derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure permanently and positively any so-called "female complaint." Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will cure constipation. There is no reason in the world why a woman should not be perfectly healthy. She will gain in health, strength and flesh. Hollows and angles will give place to fullness and grace. She will be that noblest and most beautiful of all creations—a perfect woman.

A DESPERATE RIDE.

The bell sounded for the last time. Engineer Mattern kissed his wife, leaped to his engine, and with a shrill whistle the train slowly began to move. The village it was leaving consisted of a few straggling houses, the homes of the railroad men, and the road itself was used principally for the transportation of cattle and freight, for but few travelers passed through this wild region.

The distance to Delmar, to which place they were bound, was a matter of about 25 miles, and Mattern arrived there in three hours, in spite of the darkness and disagreeable weather. In the early evening a strong wind had arisen, and till midnight a perfect hurricane raged. As soon as the train arrived at Delmar the bells gave the signal which told the employees all along the line that they could seek their rest, as there were no night trains running on that road.

Mattern rested for a little while and then looked after the work he had been given to do, which occupied him until about 11 o'clock. Leaving the engine standing with a low fire, as he was to return to the village in six hours, he gave the fireman permission to go to the engine house and get a little sleep. He himself concluded to seek a restaurant that he had noticed was still lighted up where, perhaps, he would find congenial company. As he was from the next day he could sleep then as long as he pleased.

When he came to the station platform, he met the trainmaster's assistant, Mr. Roy, who said to him: "You have just arrived in time. I was going to send some one to hunt you up. There is a telegram here for you."

"A telegram for me?" asked Mattern, looking surprised.
"Yes. Just come into the waiting room."

In a moment Mattern held the dispatch in his trembling hand.
"Special! The train master at Delmar will please inform Engineer Mattern that his child is seriously ill with diphtheria. Dr. Loden is absent on a journey and other help not to be had. Ask Mattern to bring a physician from Delmar with him when he returns early in the morning."

"My child—my poor little Charles!" groaned the father.

"There is nothing you can do but wait and hope for the best," said Mr. Roy philosophically. "Lie down and try to sleep for a few hours. I shall have to look up and leave you. Good night! I hope everything will turn out all right." And with that he went away.

Out in the darkness stood Mattern. The storm raged, and the rain beat in his face. Half past 11! Was his boy living yet? Would medical help be of any avail the next morning? Full well did he know the dangerous character of the illness against which science has not yet found a remedy. Only by quick and prompt attention can danger be averted.

After a few minutes of deep thought he suddenly turned and fairly ran to the house of Dr. Sardo and asked the name of his caller.
"Engineer Mattern, here is the answer. 'My child has diphtheria and is in great danger.'"

Dr. Sardo threw the door key out of the window, saying:
"Open the door and come up. In the meantime I will dress myself."

Mattern felt around in the darkness for the keyhole, and a few moments later stood before the doctor, a young man, who was comparatively new in the profession.

"Give me a description of your child's condition, so that I can take the necessary remedies with me. In diphtheria cases one must use all possible dispatch. You lie here in town?"

"No, doctor," answered Mattern, and with hurried breath he told his story.

"You say that the train does not return till the morning?" said the doctor rather impatiently. "Why, then, did you call me at this time of night? What do you expect me to do in the meantime?"

"Come with me, doctor!" cried Mattern, great beads of perspiration starting out on his forehead. "You can save my child if you only will. Out at the station stands my locomotive, under steam. If you will come with me, I will take you to my home in an hour's time, and my boy will be saved."

"Are you mad? Now, at dead of night, when every one is asleep, without signals or information of any kind at the stations to be passed, you intend to run your locomotive for 25 miles! Why, man, at the first intermediate station we should jump the track because the switches would be turned wrong!"

"Indeed, doctor, there is no danger, believe me. At all of the stations the switches will be turned for the train that is to leave first in the morning, and as that is mine you need have no fear about coming with me."

"But the crossings are not closed, and as no one expects a train at this time we might be the cause of a great deal of harm to passing teams."

"No, no; I know every inch of the ground and shall exercise the greatest care when we come to the crossings. And, besides, who would be out in weather like this?"

"But what you propose doing is against all rules and regulations. You will lose your position, besides being responsible for all that may happen."

"What do I care for that if I could save my child? You can do this for me if you only will. On my knees I beg of you to come with me. Oh, have pity on me!"

The doctor yielded.
Like some wild spirit of the night the solitary engine sped through the stormy darkness. Mattern had not awakened his fireman for the reason that he did not wish to create any unnecessary excitement in the engine house. When the doctor had taken his place, Mattern threw a can of oil on the fire in order to put the engine in quicker motion, and they were soon flying along at a fearful speed, which was only lessened as they passed the first station, which they did without accident, as switches were turned in the right direction.

The doctor sat down in a corner and tried to finish his broken nap, and Mattern divided his attention between keeping up the fire and regulating the speed of the engine. Had Dr. Sardo any idea of the danger he was in he would not have thought of going to sleep.

The last station was passed in safety. There were only seven miles more to make, and they would be at their destination.

While bending down to his work Mattern suddenly felt the engine give a jerk. A terrible cry followed. Mattern sprang up and looked about him. By the light of the engine he could see that they had just passed a railroad crossing. The next moment they were again flying along in the darkness and storm.

"What was that?" asked the doctor, who had been roused out of his sleep.

"Oh, nothing—very likely a stone or other substance that became fast between the rails!" answered Mattern, with choking breath. "In a few minutes we shall be there."

He slackened the speed of the engine, but he did it mechanically, as if in a dream. That fearful cry almost made his heart stand still.

He could well imagine what had happened. Some cart or wagon must have been crossing at the time his engine came tearing along in the darkness like some spirit of evil, and no doubt he was the cause of a terrible calamity. If not, what was the meaning of that sudden jerk, followed by a heartrending cry? There was the station. Mattern could only see dimly through the darkness, but knew the shape of the building too well to be mistaken. He stopped the engine and took the path to his home, followed by the doctor.

Through the window on the second floor he could see a light shining. Very likely it was there his child was lying, wrestling with death, and to save this child he had perhaps killed and wounded—how many others!

He groaned aloud. Slowly he dragged his weary feet up the stairs. His wife opened the door at his knock.

His boy was still living. Mattern saw his ashen face and heard his rattling breath. In his ears sounded again the awful cry that he had heard a short time before. His nerves, that for hours he had kept under control, gave way, now that he had reached his destination, and he fell to the floor insensible.

It was late the next morning when the engineer regained consciousness, although he could not yet collect his thoughts very clearly. A racking headache prevented this. His limbs seemed numb and heavy as lead. In the room in which he found himself, and which he recognized as their living room, a deathlike stillness reigned. He tried to lift his head, but in vain. He felt back on the pillow with a groan.

His wife heard him and came in, but with a face pale with weeping. "Ruth!" he whispered.

"Oh, my dear husband, how thankful I am to see you conscious again!" she cried.

"How is the boy? Is he still alive?"

"Oh, yes, thank God! Had you come an hour later it would have been too late, but the doctor thinks he is past all danger now. He has just been called to look after some crossing. A man is said to be killed and two women and one child badly injured. Try to sleep a little, my dear husband. That will be your best medicine. I will call you when the doctor returns."

She kissed him and went into the next room, where the child was sleeping.

One person dead, three badly hurt, perhaps fatally, and through his fault! He had had no intention of doing this. All he thought of was the saving of his child, but had he a right to undertake such a fearful responsibility when he knew what terrible consequences might follow? He rose in despair. He could not endure to lie still. The air of the room almost choked him. In his ears still sounded that fearful death cry. With trembling limbs he made his way into the bedroom. Both wife and child were sleeping. He looked at them silently, and bitter tears streamed down his cheeks. What would become of those he loved so dearly?

Slowly he went down the stairs. He could not meet the eyes of his dear ones, and without a word he opened the door and was out on the street. There he stood for some little time. The fresh air seemed to do him good.

The town clock struck 7. It was early yet. Mechanically he turned his steps toward the engine house. He wanted to look after his engine, as was his daily custom. He arrived at the shed. His engine was there, no doubt brought there by some of his coworkers. He looked at it sorrowfully, and, as of old, began to examine it. It struck him that something might have become broken during the ride.

Suddenly he heard a loud laugh. One of the workmen, whose duty it was to take the ashes out and start the fire, had come up behind him and now said jokingly:

"I suppose you want to see your roast?"

"Roast?" he asked. "What do you mean?"

"The other man laughed more than ever.
"It must have given a pretty good bump. I only wonder that the engine didn't jump the track. The front wheels were full of coal. I cleaned the whole thing and dragged the carcass away. The ashbox was full of bones. It was a pity, on account of the beautiful antlers."

So saying the workman brought out of an old shed where the firewood was kept a number of the broken pieces of a deer's antlers.

"There, you see, the poor fellow fared badly. He did not expect to be disturbed in his ramblings at nighttime by the appearance of a locomotive. He was just about to pass the crossing, and, frightened by the light at the front of the engine, stood still, and so you ran him down. In such cases a deer's sometimes acts more stupidly than a sheep or a calf."

Mattern leaned against one of the wheels of his engine to steady himself. So the cry he had heard had been the cry of a dying stag! But nevertheless there had been an accident, where some one was killed and others wounded. What a terrible thing! He seemed to be in a feverish dream.

The talkative workman seemed to guess his thoughts, or perhaps felt like giving him news of which he seemed to be in ignorance.

"Engineer Keel was not as lucky as you. This morning, in taking out the early train, he was unfortunate enough to run against a farmer's tract wagon. He was caught in it. The man who was driving seemed to be in a hurry and had taken the responsibility of opening the gates, so as to cross before the coming train, and he was killed by the engine. The accident might have been much worse, but Keel quickly slackened speed when he saw the open gates. If the train had been going at full speed, nothing could have saved them. As it is, one woman had a foot broken, another an arm. The farmer and one child were only slightly stunned, and the horses escaped without injury, although they were flung for a short distance. The wagon, of course, is all broken to pieces. Mr. Mattern—what says you? Let me go!"

The man had cause to be alarmed, for, like one who felt of his senses, Mattern had suddenly thrown his arms around him and kissed his cool blackened face, laughing and crying at the same time.

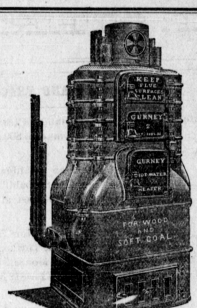

Mattern on account of going against all instructions, was taken before an examining committee and fined a month's wages, but otherwise was not punished, as it became well known why he had done such a desperate act. As for Dr. Sardo, no blame was attached to him. On the contrary, his humane deed brought him considerable practice.

Neither of the men who had been the remembrance of this stormy night will long remain with those who are still living to tell of its events.—Tribune.

OHIO REPUBLICANS

PUT A FREE SILVER PLANK IN THEIR PLATFORM.

What Free Silver Man Wants a Stronger One?

The following is the financial plank of the Ohio Republican Convention as adopted on Wednesday. If it does not mean free silver it is meant to fool
the free silver voter.

It is as follows:
"We contend for honest money; for a currency of gold, silver and paper with which to measure our exchange that shall be as sound as the Government and as unimpaired as its honor;
and to that end we favor bimetallic and demand the use of both gold and silver as standard money. Either in accordance with a ratio to be fixed by international agreement, if that can be obtained, or under such restrictions and such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parities of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold or paper, shall be at all times equal."

A Nebraska Phenomenon.

Omaha, Neb., March 12.—A strange phenomenon has been noticed in various parts of Nebraska. Water stands higher in wells and is found in larger volumes in streams than for several years at this season. There has been very little rain in Nebraska during the past fall and winter, yet streams which were dry are filling with water from unknown sources and wells show more water than usual.

Another Pension Steal.

Of the many peculiar pension schemes, one has recently been introduced that should be awarded the palm for originality and effrontery.
It is not conceivable that it has been asked for by any considerable number of those it is framed to benefit. It is entitled "A bill to enter on the pension roll all officers, non-commissioned officers, soldiers, sailors and marines awarded medals of honor for gallant and distinguished service under the act of Congress approved March 3, 1863."

Worse than this, no disability, or even suspicion of disability, is required.
Worse still, the bill is retroactive. It provides twelve dollars a month for all medal-of-honor men, and carries the date from which payment is made back to the date for which the medal was awarded. Thus, each pensioner of this distinguished class—and to remain distinguished, at least up to the date of accepting such a pension —would receive over $4,000 of arrears. And, to make this proposed grab complete, it is provided that this pension shall not impair or diminish any other pension that has been or may be obtained.

If a man of ability, skilled in pension literature and practices, were given the problem to devise a bill which should most thoroughly degrade medal-of-honor men, it is difficult to see how he would improve on the provisions of the pending bill. If any of this class become pensioners under present laws, well and good, but for the class to seek pensions under this bill is to degrade those who participate in urging it to a lower level than any other applicant for pension on improper grounds have ever reached, and below which level it would seem impossible for any one to sink. To repeat, it can not be that this bill speaks for any considerable number of the most distinguished class of soldiers. If reported for action, it should be with an amendment providing that those who accept pensions under it shall surrender their medals of honor and receive medals of dishonor, setting forth the facts of the exchange.—Commercial Gazette.

SETTLEMENT

OF THE VENEZULAN AFFAIR.

Report That One Has Been Reached By Cleveland and Salisbury.

A dispatch sent out Wednesday
from Washington says:

"A settlement of the Venezuelan question has been reached. It will be announced at an early day. Of this satisfactory conclusion of the controversy the President has had knowledge for two days past. Great Britain has acted with a magnanimity which commends her to her severest critics. She concedes so much that there will be little left should arbitration be necessary. It is not improbable that the entire matter will not be settled outside the Venezuelan Commission by the President and Lord
Salisbury.

"Under the terms, so far as outlined Great Britain agrees to submit all of the questions in dispute to amicable adjustment with the President through the State Department as one of the contracting parties. That Venezuela would agree to almost anything submitted by the United States has been known all along. It is surmised that the attitude of some of the influential London papers in pointing out alleged defects in the British blue book may have had something to do with the change of attitude by Queen Victoria's Ministers.

"The President was in very high spirits last night over the favorable turn in the controversy between the two nations."

The Jeffersonville Industrial School.

JEFFERSONVILLE, KY., March 16, 1896.—The Jeffersonville Industrial School opened the first Monday in March. There were three young men in the industrial department with a small local patronage. We are expecting more young men every day. Several have written us that they were coming, and our local patronage will be larger as soon as the weather settles, so that I think I can safely count on 20 or 25 the first term. There is a positive demand for the work I am trying to do. A number of young men have written me that they wanted to come but that the matriculation fee of $10.00 was in their way. Perhaps some one will say that so small amount could be raised by any man who has any get-up about him, but when you think of the pressure of the times and the difficulty of getting employment it is not so easy as one might suppose. I have written to such as could not raise the money to come on anyway. I am trusting to God and his people for success in this work. In fact, I am walking by faith, for I never could have begun a work like this at a more inauspicious time than this, so far as finance is concerned, but to wait until there was plenty of money on hand to run it with would not make it a work of faith. Most anybody can walk by faith when they have a large bank account. The Savior said on one occasion to his disciples, "Bring the few loaves and fishes that you have," and they brought them and the Savior pronounced his blessing. They were multiplied and thousands were fed. I have brought the little I have to God, and asked his blessing upon it, and I believe that multitudes of poor young men and women will be blessed. Show your faith by your works is the divine command.

I have room for 10 or 15 more young men, but I have not means to furnish the beds and bedding outfits. The $10 fee is used in furnishing the rooms, and I therefore appeal to those who are my friends and the friends of such a work to lend a helping hand in getting such an enterprise on its feet, so that I can take those who apply, money or no money. I feel assured that if I were to read some of the pitiful letters that I receive, your heart would be touched and you would be inclined to assist the work. I appeal to you for the sake of the poor and unfortunate; I appeal to you for the sake of an education in its infancy struggling to get on its feet, which may prove a blessing to scores of poor young men and women; I appeal to you for the sake of the community in which the work is being done, to help a man that is trying to do something for a community that has a history of crime. Already the good effects of the work are being felt in this community. A Sunday-school and prayer meeting are being run by the school, and are well attended. I appeal to you for your own sake. It will enrich your own heart and cause you to rejoice as you see the work succeeding, good being done and God's name being glorified.

The three young men attending school are fine young men, all members of the church, and one studying for the ministry. Four of the young men who have applied for a place in the school desire to study for the ministry. Think of the number who may possibly lay the foundation for the ministry of the precious word of God. I am not in the least discouraged, while a good many of my friends have spoken words of discouragement; some have ridiculed the work. I am in it to win and to stay until the last resource is tried, for there is no doubt but that there is a positive demand for the work, and that it can and will succeed. That to the friends of the enterprise who have assisted me and spoken words of encouragement.

I close by saying to any young man or woman who wants an education had enough to work for it to write me at Jeffersonville, Ky. J. B. GREENWADE.

The ladies of the Baptist and Christian churches have secured the talented Max O'Rell for a lecture at the Opera House in this city on Monday evening, March 30. The man, woman or child who misses this lecture will have good reason for regret. Max O'Rell never fails to send his audience away feeling sorry that the lecture is over.

The Boston Gazette says of him: "His forte is his faculty of putting facts before his hearers in the most telling manner. His lectures run along like the gentle billows of the ocean. He holds his audiences in the palms of his hands and plays upon their emotions as easily as a shepherd on his pipes."
